

Washington—Only a few of his most intimate advisers know it, but the President's recent "freside chat" signified a highly important switch in his economic theories.

While discussing domestic affairs, Roosevelt read a short quotation from a "leading economist." He did not name this man, but he meant Professor O. M. W. Sprague, one-time adviser to the Bank of England.

Only because Roosevelt asked him to, Sprague left his $25,000 a year British post to join the Treasury at $6000. But he didn't stay long. Sprague wanted the New Deal to embark on a large scale, low-cost housing and slum-clearance program as the English had done, but Roosevelt couldn't see it. Also, Sprague clashed with him over the issue of prices.

The President had been sold on the idea that the way to revive industry was to boost prices. Sprague held this was unsound temporizing. He advocated low prices and large volume of production.

But when he couldn't get Roosevelt to follow his advice, Sprague quietly departed and returned to his old job at Harvard. Unlike Professor Ray Moley, General Hugh Johnson and other one-time counselors, however, he didn't break with the President. They continued good friends, and in the past year have resumed their earlier close relationship.

More of Sprague
Moreover, as a result of frequent exchange of opinion and the present stock slump, Roosevelt has completely changed his mind on the price issue and now agrees with Sprague.

In his speech the President gave two indications of this new view, (1) the flattering reference to Sprague; (2) the statement, "... increased volume of sales ought to lessen other costs of production so much that even a considerable increase in labor costs can be absorbed without imposing higher prices on the consumer."

Among other things, Roosevelt believes abundant cotton and wheat crops may bring about a wider distribution of money, even though they sell at lower prices.

White House insiders predict more specific statements along these lines in the near future.

George Washington
A Virginia agent of rural electrification called a meeting of farmers in the high school of Bowling Green recently to discuss establishment of a utilities cooperative. Following the meeting prices were given out, consisting of an electric iron and full course meals cooked by electricity on the stage.

Names were drawn out of a hat, and the top prize winner proved to be "George Washington."

Boyd Fisher, in charge of the REA meeting, thought a practical joker had put this name in the hat. But at that moment George Washington rose in the audience, claimed his prize—the electric iron—and explained that he was the seventh lineal descendant of George Washington's brother John.

Handing over the New Deal prize to George Washington, Fisher asked if there were a Martha Washington to make use of the iron. George replied that there was not; he would use the iron to press his pants.

Unexpected Friend
Hanging in a prominent place among the large collection of autographed photos in Postmaster General Jim Farley's office is a picture of a certain ardent New Deal critic and Senator from Virginia. The inscription below reads:

"To my staunch friend and genuine Democrat, With cordial best wishes Carter Glass."

Put and Take
Although not advertising it, New Deal legalists are far from elated with Chief Justice Hughes' ruling on Justice Black.

Privately they refer to it as the "put and take" decision. Black was given a pat on the back, but simultaneously the Court took more power for itself—the right to pass upon who shall or shall not sit on the Supreme Court. Under the Constitution this is the prerogative only of the President and the Senate.

Hughes' decision was a masterpiece of legal finesse. For deftness and historic significance, administrative say it compared with Chief Justice John Marshall's famed Marbury vs Madison decree.

This case also involved a judicial appointee; a Justice of the Peace in the District of Columbia whose commission of office was pigeonholed by Jefferson, Marshall upheld Jefferson, his bitter political foe, but in doing so seized the opportunity to enunciate the doctrine that the Supreme Court had the right to pass on acts of Congress.

The decision created such a furor that a half century passed before the power claimed by Marshall was used by the Court. When it

ATTACKS ON SECURITIES BOARD LOST

Supreme Court Refuses to Review Lower Courts

Washington, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Three Florida companies lost in the Supreme Court today in an attack on a securities commission attempt to subpoena their telegrams.

The tribunal refused to review a decision against the companies by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. The latter sustained the subpoenas, as well as the 1933 "Trust in Securities" act under which the subpoenas were issued.

Justice Black was assumed to have participated in the action announced today on approximately 30 controversies appealed from lower courts.

No announcement was made that he had not participated. An announcement ordinarily is made when justices disqualify themselves for any reason from passing on litigation.

Court Refuses Review

Refusal of the high tribunal to review the attack on the securities commission produced renewed speculation as to whether Black's supposed participation would give the companies grounds to challenge the court's ruling.

While chairman of the Senate lobby committee Black used telegrams, obtained by the communications system, which had been sent and received by persons under investigation by the committee.

In other actions by the court, the Jeffery-Dewitt Insulator Company of Kenova, W. Va., lost an attack on an order by the national labor relations board, which held the company guilty of unfair labor practices.

The tribunal refused to review a decision against the company by the fourth circuit court of appeals.

Dismiss New York Appeal

Dismissed, "for the want of a substantial federal question," an appeal from a decision by the New York supreme court sustaining constitutional validity of a 1935 state law barring civil actions for alienation of affections, seduction and breach of promise.

Dismissed an attack on a ruling by the Kentucky court of appeals sustaining an attempt by the state to impose a tax on cosmetics sold within the state which had been purchased outside its borders. The Supreme Court said "it does not appear from the record that there is a final judgment."

The 1933 securities required registration of proposed issues of stocks with the securities commission.

Attackers of Subpoenas

Those attacking the subpoenas were the Ryan Florida Corporation of Tampa; Income Royalties Company of St. Petersburg, and the Florida Tex Oil Company of St. Petersburg.

They contended the commission's subpoena action "was an exploratory search for evidence" and "constituted an unlawful search and seizure."

All of today's court action was on petitions seeking a review of lower court decisions. Validity of the legislation involved was not at stake.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Marguerite Fox Dolbow, under sentence to be electrocuted in New Jersey's death chair, and Norman Driscoll, convicted with her of killing her husband, won a 30-day reprieve today.

The reprieve, the second granted the couple by Governor Hoffman, set aside the death sentence scheduled to be carried out next week at state prison.

Upon application by Mrs. Dolbow and Driscoll, the court postponed action on the commutation plea "until a subsequent meeting of the court, this meeting to be called by the governor."

Besides the charge of murdering Dr. James G. Littlefield, Dwyer was also charged with strangling the 67-year-old physician's wife. He was arraigned before Judge Harry M. Shaw in nearby Norway. The procedure required three minutes.

His counsel, E. Walker Abbott, former county attorney, waived hearing and the boy was returned to jail.

Earlier police had said that, regardless of the outcome, the slim sallow-faced youth will be called to answer murder charges tomorrow in Portland in the death of the doctor's 65-year-old wife.

Sheriff Not Satisfied

Police said Dwyer strangled Mrs. Littlefield Friday when she "became suspicious" after he had driven her around since Wednesday night seeing her husband, whose body was stuffed in the rear trunk of the automobile.

Police Chief George Shippee of Arlington, N. J., where the youth was found Saturday sleeping in a parked automobile, said Dwyer told him he killed Dr. Littlefield because "he made a dirty crack about the girl I was going out with."

But Sheriff F. F. Francis of Oxford county declared he was "not particularly satisfied" with the youth's explanation of his motive.

"Dwyer hadn't seen this girl for more than a year," the sheriff said.

They described the engagement, in which Chinese fought to protect supply bases, as the heaviest single encounter in the Shanghai area since hostilities began.

Colonel Chin Ching-Wu, commander of the Chinese force at Tazang, had declared they would fight to the last man. After 30 hours of continuous battle against Japanese infantry supported by planes and naval guns, Colonel Chin was killed and his force wiped out.

GOVERNOR RULES TO STOP RACING AT PARK TODAY

Narragansett Track Is Closed By Martial Law

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 18.—(AP)—With national guard machine guns set up at the entrance of the Narragansett Park Race Track, officials of the track called off today this afternoon's racing "because of martial law."

Armed national guardsmen patrolled the area about the million-dollar racing plant to enforce Governor Robert E. Quinn's command that the plant be closed.

Patrick Horgan, secretary of the association operating the track, announced:

"Today's races have been cancelled because of martial law. Entries are being accepted for tomorrow."

Asked if track officials would follow the procedure of accepting entries daily for the following day's racing program during the track officials' attempt to open the park for racing, Horgan declined to answer.

Three Hundred Guardsmen
Three hundred guardsmen, under command of Adjutant General Herbert R. Dean and Colonel Earl C. Webster, moved into the area yesterday after Governor Robert E. Quinn proclaimed "a state of insurrection" existed at the million dollar track.

The troops hardly had taken their positions when Henry F. Curvin, director of public safety in Pawtucket and Democratic majority leader in the Rhode Island House, announced he had sent a letter to the governor, threatening to bring impeachment proceedings against him for ordering out the militia.

The governor's proclamation, issued Saturday night, declared the "danger" of attendance of "gangsters, criminals and persons of ill repute" at the fall meeting, scheduled to open this afternoon would cause "injury to our citizens" which civil authorities would be "unable to compete with."

Order Outing of Director
The proclamation followed a state supreme court decision setting aside an order of the state racing division suspending the removal of Walter E. O'Hara as managing director.

The division's order came as the result of a series of moves made by the chief executive to remove O'Hara.

Examiner's Rule Blocks Attacks by Opposing Counsel

Washington, Oct. 18.—(AP)—An examiner's ruling blocked today attacks by opposing counsel on Martin R. O'Brien's contention he is financially able to own and operate a proposed radio station in Aurora, Ill.

The examiner denied several motions to strike items from O'Brien's list of $73,925 in assets. O'Brien has asked the communications commission for a permit to build a station of 250 watts power to operate on 1,250 kilocycles.

The motions were made by counsel for Jules J. Rubens, Aurora theater supervisor, who also has made application for a station there. Ruben's counsel objected to a $13,000 cash item listed among the assets. He argued it should be stricken because the money was deposited in a Springfield bank by O'Brien's Aurora attorney.

During cross-examination of O'Brien his attorney asserted questioning about the $13,000 item was "a fishing expedition."

"We will show that this is most certainly not a fishing expedition," retorted Ruben's counsel.

O'Brien testified he did not know whether his attorney was also attorney for the Aurora Beacon News. He denied he had discussed an agreement under which the Aurora Beacon News would finance the station in return for a half interest in it and control of all advertising.

O'Brien testified the $13,000 was deposited in a Springfield bank by his attorney because he personally could not go to Springfield that day. The money, however, was subject to his checking account, he said.

The witnesses said the reason he did not deposit it in the Merchants National Bank of Aurora was that Rubens was a stockholder of that bank and O'Brien saw no reason for letting him know about the cash.

No "Immediate Plans"
Ruben's counsel also sought to have stricken all real estate valuations listed among the assets on grounds no independent appraisals were given. When this was denied he moved to delete real estate assets on grounds that O'Brien did not own the property individually but under a joint tenant deed. This too was denied.

O'Brien said he had no "immediate plans" for incorporating if his permit should be granted, although he might later.

"If I could better serve the community by incorporation," he added, "I certainly would."

He said he had told prospective advertisers the advertising rate for the contemplated station would be about $1 a minute and that the area served would be about 15 miles in each direction from Aurora.

REMINISCENCES

By H. G. REMINGTON

Dixon Telegraph Staff Writer and Former London Times Military and Feature Writer

Born to leisure and luxury, and precluded mostly by social tradition from earning their own living, titled and wealthy Brits are obliged to turn to hobbies for an occupation. The social treadmill is so exacting that it calls for relaxation, and thus we have the paradox of men and women turning to work because they are tired of play.

Although hobbies have always been in vogue in aristocratic circles, the pastime of work has developed during recent years. In many a shed on country estates noble owners have worked as amateur carpenters. Indeed the Duke of Windsor has been known to do some carpenter work. The Wimborne family used to run a private printing establishment, where choice literary works were turned out for private circulation. This is a reminder that Gladstone sought health and relaxation in felling trees.

The cult of the camera is still universally popular with English society people, in spite of their general habit of turning down a pastime when Tom, Dick and Harry take to it. This popularity is due largely to the late Queen Alexandra, the first and most eminent kodak enthusiast in Britain. All the world had an opportunity of admiring her snapshots some years ago when they were reproduced in a book and sold in aid of charity. These included the best likenesses of King Edward that have ever been taken, and revealed at a glance the privileged position of the operator of the camera.

Another amateur photographer of exalted rank was the Duke of Newcastle, who had thirty cameras and thousands of plates and films stowed away at Clumber, which happily escaped the fire that partly devastated that historic pile. His interest in photography dated from boyhood days, and he turned out work not to be surpassed by the average professional. Pictures gave him his greatest trouble, and he never quite satisfied himself in getting a satisfactory photo of an old master. He told me he found Japan one of the most beautiful countries in the world for photographic work, owing to its abundance of exquisite color and beautiful light and shade.

The old-fashioned hobby of stamp collecting, once considered by the English as too quiet an avocation to appeal widely to smart people, was revived some years ago in England. One of the most distinguished collectors, the Earl of Crawford, sold a superb collection of stamps for a tidy sum. The late King George once was an enthusiastic collector, but after he ascended the throne he transferred his interests to coins. He made it a practice, begun years before in his naval days of keeping specimens of the currencies of different countries he visited. Some of his most prized coins and medals have been loaned to the London Museum in Kensington Palace.

Naturally one of the most popular out-of-door hobbies is golf, a game in which the one-time rival statesman A. J. Balfour and David Lloyd George were particularly fond. Nearly all of the British aristocracy play the ancient game as a matter of course, although only a portion of them make golf a real hobby.

Perhaps the best known golfer in English society is the well known sporting peer, the Earl of Yarborough, who makes a specialty, too, of collecting golf yarns.

One of his best stories relates to an overseas visitor while playing golf on a private course in Scotland met an old Scottish shoemaker who had never seen the game played. "Well, I'm just going for a round, and if you like you can come along," said the visitor affably.

Arrived at the link he made a nice tee on which to set the ball. Then he gave a mighty swing and missed. "Gran' game gof, sir," observed the Scotchman. The visitor swung his club and missed again. "Capital game, sir; splendid," said the shoemaker. For the third time the club was swung and missed. The shoemaker was excited at last. "Man, it's simply magnificent," he cried. "But what's the wee ba' for?"

Every smart woman nowadays can talk the jargon of the aerodrome, for aviation is about the most fashionable of all hobbies. One of the pioneer British women was Mrs. Maurice Hewlett, wife of the well known novelist. In an early interview Mrs. Hewlett declared the time would come when women would be piloting their own flying machines with the ease with which they drove their automobiles. Lady Abby took early to the perilous joys of flying. She once had a narrow escape from disaster at Brooklands, while accompanying Grahame-White as a passenger.

The Duke of Westminster, whose chief hobby was polo playing, was the first Britisher in aristocratic circles to purchase a Wright biplane. The Earl of Hardwicke and Lord Howard de Walden also were among early students of aviation. Somers Somerset, son of Lady Somerset, possessed the French aviation brevet two years before the World war, and the Honorable Maurice Egerton, heir to Lord Egerton of Tatton, and the Honorable A. Boyle, the Earl of Glasgow's youngest son, were early holders of pilotage certificates.

That rich man's hobby, yachting, has had many enthusiastic devotees, all of whom have been seen from time to time at Cowes during the first week in August, when the Royal Yacht squadron's regatta takes place. The late Sir Thomas Lipton was perhaps the best known. Lord Dunraven and the Duke of Leeds, both of whom served as commodores of the Royal Yacht squadron, were yachting experts and possessed master's certificates. Lord and Lady Leith of Fyvie were never happier than when aloft in their steam yacht Miranda, and the same can be said of Lord Brassey, a veteran sportsman whose voyages in the Sunbeam belong to the classic history of marine pleasuring.

Viscount Acheson, the Marchioness of Ailsa and Lord Nicholham also have been much in evidence in English yachting circles. Several well known women, not content to be mere passengers on such floating hotels as Lord Anglesay's Semiramis or the Duke of Bedford's Sapphire, have gone in for practical boat sailing. The Duchess of Westminster, Lady Margaret Macrae, and Mrs. W. L. Wyllie, wife of the marine painter, were accomplished helmswomen.

English society boasts many adept swimmers, most of whom learned the art of natation at the fashionable Bath club, where some of the English princes and princesses have been taught their strokes. Lady Rosemary Leveson-Gower, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, was a clever diver, a keen follower of the foxhounds and an expert horsewoman.

Among English society women who have distinguished themselves in deep water swimming are Lady Marjorie Dalrymple, who swam across Loch Ryan, Stranraer, a distance of three miles against a strong current, and Mrs. Arthur Hamilton, daughter of Sir Charles and Lady Fairlie Cunningham, who swam the Solent from Stokes Bay to Ryde in the Isle of Wight, a distance of three and a half miles, in two hours.

Curiously enough one of the Vanderbilts was responsible for speeding up the popularity of the old-time pastime of coaching. Lord Desborough, famous traveler and gunner, also was an enthusiastic manipulator of the ribbons, though not so closely identified with coaching as Vanderbilt, who was seen frequently tooling his spanking team from London to Brighton. For years members of the Coaching

ARRESTED, 9 KILLED

Washington —(AP)—The European idea that G-men spend most of their time chasing kidnappers and bank robbers around the United States is official of the federal bureau of investigation.

J. Edgar Hoover, bureau director, dispatched Major W. H. D. Lester of the International Criminal Police Commission, meeting in London, to explain that G-men are primarily "scientific investigators."

Major Lester explained to the delegates that during the last three years G-men killed only 9 criminals of the 12,000 taken into custody.

Sherman Hotel Called Patriarch of Illinois Inns

The members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, to do honor to the site in Illinois on which hospitality has been largest dispensed in the way of bed and board, unveiled a bronze tablet Saturday, April 27th, 1929, on the Randolph Street side of the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, Ill.

The tablet is engraved as follows:

This marks the oldest site in Illinois on which a hotel has been continuously maintained.

City Hotel ..... 1837
Sherman House ..... 1861
Sherman House ..... 1873
Hotel Sherman ..... 1910
Hotel Sherman ..... 1925

Tablet erected under the auspices of Chicago Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution—1929.

The unveiling followed a luncheon in the Old Town Lunch Room of the hotel, which was followed by a program of speeches and music reminiscent of pioneer Chicago. J. Frank Aldrich, Miss Caroline McVaine, J. W. Blatchford, William D. Saltiel and Mrs. Thomas Dixon, regent of the Chicago Chapter of the D. A. R. were among the speakers. Mrs. James H. Jackson was in charge of the affair.

A hotel has stood upon the site of the Sherman at Randolph and Clark Streets, the records show, since 1837, when Francis Cornwell Sherman, later mayor of Chicago, erected a three-story structure of brick. The tavern was known as the City Hotel.

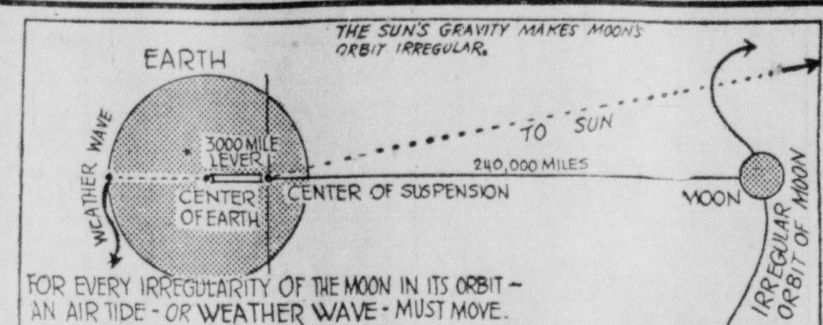

A night's lodging at the hostelry, proclaimed by enthusiastic pioneers a rival of anything in Boston or New York, could be had for 12½ cents. Breakfast was "two bits" as was a "morning's morning" or a half pint of rum.

Then came the gold rush and a greater demand for rooms. Two stories were added to the hotel, as well as a circular staircase and a cupol. At this time, 1849, the hotel became known as the Sherman.

The original structure gave way in 1861 to a magnificent six story building costing $200,000, with an elevator, the wonder of the age. The elevator is described in contemporary press notices as "the steam car which runs from floor to floor." After serving the city for a decade the Sherman tumbled into ashes when the great fire swept the city.

Out of the ruins arose another Sherman, seven stories high, and the last word in contemporary hotel magnificence. It lasted until 1909, when it was pulled down to make way for the present building. The structure has been added to twice since then to become 24

HOW DOES THE MOON MAKE WEATHER

How does the moon make weather? Well folks, imagine if you can, a great steelyard hung in the sky with the earth on one end and the moon on the other. Both are under the gravitational pull of the sun. The earth weighs 81 times as much as the moon, so in order to come to a balance, the moon's arm must be 81 times as long as the earth's. The moon is 240,000 miles away from the earth. We are accustomed to thinking that the moon revolves around the earth, but strictly speaking both earth and moon go around their mutual center of gravity. One eighty-first of twenty-four thousand miles is nearly 3,000 miles. The center of gravity of the earth and moon's system lies inside the bulk of the earth, but is displaced nearly 3,000 miles away from the center of the earth in the direction of the moon. The earth, you remember, is 8,000 miles in diameter, making the center of gravity of earth-moon system about one thousand miles under our feet. This fact is very important in weather it gives the moon a 3,000 mile lever whereby it is able to swing the earth about. The moon runs in a most irregular orbit and every single oscillation that the moon makes in its orbit is instantly reflected in a change in the moon's gravity pull on the earth.

It is these oscillations that make weather on the earth wherever the moon changes its orbit fast. These oscillations—changes in the moon's gravity pull—generate weather waves on the earth. Once a weather wave has been set in motion, that particular air will run until it wears itself out by friction.

Every day a new set of weather waves, nine on the average, are generated replacing those that die out. The result is a complicated pattern of moving air masses that we call storms alternating with clear skies. We'll talk more about this later.

POCKET WEATHER CARD

The movements of air masses through November are shown on a convenient card which Prof. Selby Maxwell has designed. You can see at a glance how the large weather moves are going to occur this fall. A lucid explanation is printed right on the card. Carry this weather card in your pocket or hand bag. It will be sent to you free with the compliments of this newspaper, if you write to Prof. Selby Maxwell, care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped (3c) self-addressed envelope for your reply. Just ask for the "Weather Card."

MILLIONS MORE FOR FINER TOBACCOS!

IS IT GOOD BUSINESS TO BUY COSTLIER TOBACCOS FOR CAMELS?

the answer is:

Camels are the Largest-Selling cigarette in America

The pleasure you get out of a cigarette depends on what's put in it. And in the case of Camels that means finer, costlier tobaccos!

THROUGH the years, Camel has consistently spent millions of dollars more for choice, ripe tobaccos!

That represents a way of doing business that smokers understand and appreciate. Millions of smokers have responded to the appeal of Camel's choice quality. Because of it, Camels have an attraction all their own!

It's a happy experience to have confidence in your cigarette... to know that you are getting the good things out of smoking that you hope for. The plain fact that Camel does spend millions of dollars more for ripe, more costly tobaccos appeals to the common sense of American men and women.

It is good business!

THE NEW CAMEL CARAVAN—TWO GREAT SHOWS IN AN HOUR'S ENTERTAINMENT!

I don't worry about jangled nerves."

"YOU BET I've been careful about my nerves. Smoke? All I want to. My cigarette is Camel."

"I SMOKE Camels and my nerves stay serene and unruffled. You see, I don't want to have those irritating little nervous habits," says window display expert, POLLY PETTIT.

"FROM ANY angle, Camel is the cigarette for yours truly. When I'm tired, I light a Camel and back to work I go with a 'lift' in energy," FRANK MULLADY, auto mechanic, says.

"AS A fashion designer spending long night hours creating new styles, I've grown to depend on the mellow companionship Camels give me," says the famous designer, RENEE MONTAGUE.

"I'VE BEEN a sports reporter for twenty-five years," says JAMES GOULD. "And for twenty-three of these years—right from the time Camels were first brought out—I've been a steady Camel smoker. Camels don't tire my taste."

"DUCK, SWORDFISH STEAK, and Boston cream pie—my favorites—aren't the most digestible foods. But with Camels at meals my digestion does a swell job," says BRUCE WALLIS, college senior.

"I OFTEN SAY a woman who runs a home needs healthy nerves as much as any athlete. So I smoke the cigarette that I know is mild—Camel," says MRS. ROBERT FENNIMORE, New York housewife.

"FOR YEARS I'VE chosen Camels. I notice Camels leave no after-taste," remarks MAXINE HOLLEN, department store salesgirl.

STORIES IN STAMPS

FATHER OF THE MEXICAN REVOLUTION

A LIBERAL and an idealist at heart, Francisco Madero first sowed the seeds of Mexican revolution as early as 1905. At that time he opposed the "absolutism" of the Diaz administration and scored the election massacres at Monterrey. Immediately, the Diaz group blocked his path. In 1909 he was arrested and kept in jail long enough to destroy all possible chances of overthrowing Diaz for re-election.

Released later, Madero carried on. "Take up arms, my people, drive the despots from power, recover your rights of free men," he appealed. And with that challenge, the revolution swept the country. A year later, June 7, 1911, Madero entered Mexico City and in October became president by unanimous election.

Under him began immediate reform. Labor unions were encouraged, the old monopolistic concessions abolished, government aid to capitalists against strikers was refused. But Madero suffered many difficulties and insurrection nullified his land reform plans. Finally in 1913, revolt, led by Diaz, overthrew Madero and he and his vice president, Pino Suarez, were murdered while being transferred from one prison to another. Blame for the deaths was never placed. Madero is pictured on a 1915 stamp.

ASK KEOKUK

We wander off to the upper reaches of the Missouri river in Montana and out to the Pacific coast seeing visions of what great power projects are going to do for their localities.

If we want some direct information, we do not need to go so far from home.

Ask Keokuk.

Thirty years ago all Keokuk was agog over the fact that the largest power dam in the world was to be made it the greatest power market in the midcontinent. There were visions of industries flocking to Keokuk. The great Mississippi river was to be harnessed, the first time in its history, and its power was to be turned into industry.

The dam was built at a cost of $27,000,000. It probably would cost the government three times as much to reproduce it. This was the work of a private corporation. The Mississippi was harnessed. The power was turned into industry.

What happened to Keokuk's boom?

In 1900 Keokuk had a population of 14,641. The dam was put into operation in July, 1913. In 1920 Keokuk had a population of 14,423. By 1930 the boom so had progressed that Keokuk counted 15,106 souls within her boundaries.

The harnessed power was taken away and delivered in large part in St. Louis, where the industries already were located. Nobody decentralized. Nobody rushed to Keokuk. There was no resettlement. There was no making America over. There was no more abundant life.

This much may be said for the private project at Keokuk. The promoters set up their machinery to manufacture for a market that was a market. They didn't speculate on turning sheep ranches into cities.

The idea of giving heed to experience is outmoded. The idea is to spend the money where it can be spent the fastest.

CAREER IN CITY GOVERNMENT

Complaint is made by the committee on career service of the International City Managers' association that college graduates who have specialized in public service are given few chances as career men in municipal governments.

City managers seem to be fairly well organized for propaganda for the form of government that puts them on top of the heap, but the committee on career service seems to find few places for "apprentices" in municipal government.

It is related that eighty colleges and universities offer courses preparing for public service, but that only about a dozen cities a year give graduates a chance for practical performance. It is asserted that any change is up to the administrators already on the job, who must have "a positive willingness to assume the periodic responsibility of training an apprentice."

This is part of the movement to jar loose the local officials and set up city managers who may move from place to place, accepting the highest bid for their services. Now that the city manager has become recognized in laws of numerous states, the urge is put on him to get an assistant. That makes a job for one more. Now the movement seems to be to get him an apprentice whose aim is supposed to be to work up to the position of city manager, adopting the field as a career.

Summarized, the committee's conclusion is:

"A nation-wide local government service that is actually developing 'real careers' would absorb several hundred apprentices a year. These apprentices would be on strict probation and would not receive permanent appointments until they had proved their ability. The proving process in some cases might extend over several years. In cases of prejudice against taking on non-local residents as apprentices, administrators are urged to discharge their responsibility by making certain that no young persons of exceptional promise in their own communities lack opportunity to make a career in local government."

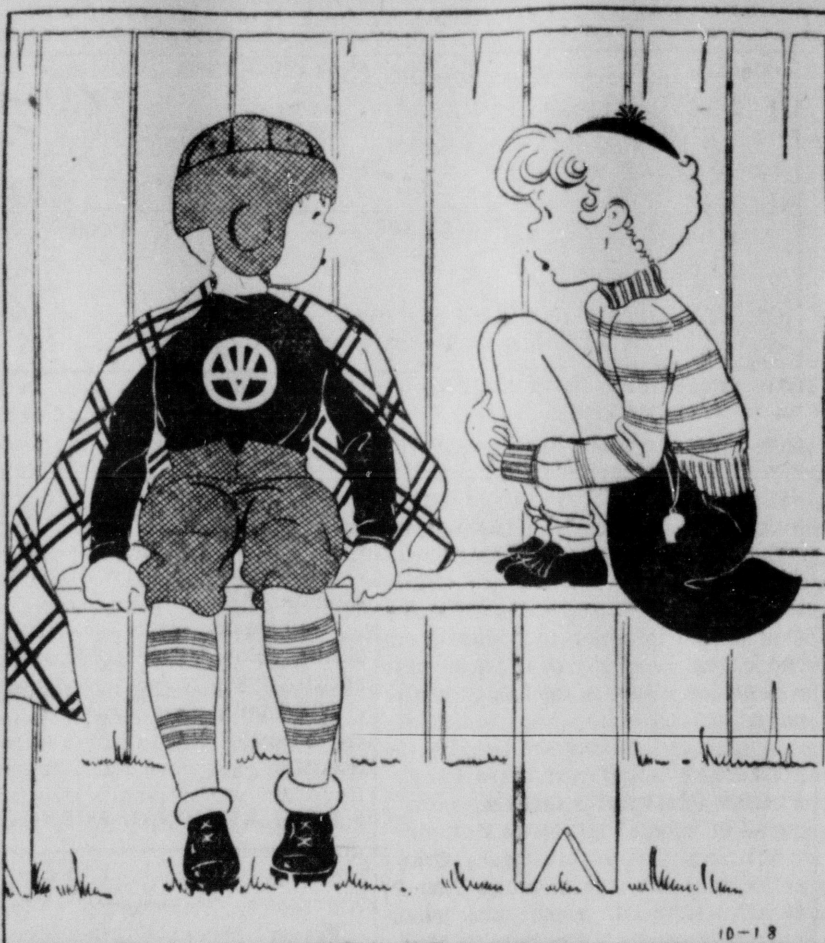

Our observation right after a city election has been that there always is plenty of persons in each community who are anxious "to make a career in local government."

More and more it appears that our educational institutions are directing their graduates to the public trough. Of course the trough is much longer than it used to be when it afforded places for only ambitious young lawyers and the sons of county chairmen.

Once upon a time our agricultural colleges educated the young men with the purpose of sending them back to the farm better qualified to make the land produce a living and to make it a better place on which to live. Now, it seems to us, the rush is not to the farm but to the government payroll. The government for a period of years sent graduates out to show the farmer how to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before. Now the government pays them to stop growing that extra blade. More than that, young men who start out to devote themselves to whatever was meritorious about increasing the products of the soil, have arrived at a state of being a political agency on the payroll of the government. They began as agriculturists and wound up as "ward heelers."

Then there are the engineers. We began training so many engineers that private industry seemed not ready to absorb them all. They couldn't just start practicing as lawyers, doctors, and dentists do. They had to get jobs. The automobile came along just in time—and what a campaign the engineering colleges put on to get an engineer on the payroll of every county. Federal aid, state aid, and college aid, all were mobilized to promote the campaign. The time was ripe and they won. Now when a young man thinks about an education in engineering, he simultaneously thinks about getting on the public payroll. We assume that he does, as he will be educated that way when he goes to school.

Now we are about to see a campaign to get graduates out to municipal payrolls for "careers."

Faces Long Term For Immorality With Girl Wards

Centralia, Ill., Oct. 18.—(AP)—The Rev. J. K. Aichele, deposed superintendent of the Hudson orphan home, faced a long stay in the Marion county jail at Salem today on six charges of immoral relations with his young girl wards.

State's Attorney Ward Holt announced after a conference with Circuit Judge William B. Wright that the September grand jury would not be recalled to hear the charges against the Rev. Aichele. The clergyman, held in default of $18,000 bonds, will be held for the January grand jury, Holt said.

Holt reported there had been no attempt to post bonds.

The Rev. Aichele was discharged last week by the home's board of trustees after Police Sgt. O. T. Bounds arrested him on the testimony of several of the nine orphan girls who were questioned.

1. Yes, Unless a man has so much money that a few hundred dollars mean little to his wife in case of his death, he should let her know what he does with every dollar. This does not mean he has to account for every dollar he spends for ball games, etc.—but, to speak mildly, it just isn't sporting, not to keep his wife fully informed of his finances.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. To a very great extent. Psychologists are developing a test of "personality" (not yet ready for publication) but it has already shown that unhappiness is largely a manifestation of emotional instability and that this is largely due to the failure to develop definite skill in getting along with other people. A person who is well adjusted to other people, so that they like him, and he influences them favorably, is happy practically all the time, except for occasional jolts, losses, etc. Send for our booklet, Acquiring Self-Confidence Through Getting Along with Other People. This Monday we have reserved the space for sidelights on the Lee County Teachers' Institute of last week. After the news stories which appeared on Thursday and Friday this may seem like serving turkey one day and feathers the next. However, it has been moved and seconded that we call this

CHAPTER FIVE

All in favor signify by continuing down the page; all opposed signify by turning to "Boots and Her Buddies."

Dr. Willis A. Sutton of Atlanta, Ga., was inspiring his audience with a love of the real beauty which "is its own excuse for being" and the misconceptions of it when he suddenly surprised about 250 women by declaring "there isn't a woman with a good looking hat in the crowd." Then he added, "They—the hats, not the women—are all freakish and look as if they had been taken off Noah's Ark."

Declaring that modern civilization with its inventions of speed has been superimposed on mankind and that we are not yet able to take it in our stride, Dr. Sutton assumed that "If you had put a man to bed in the Nachusa in the earliest days of that hotel, and if you had allowed him to sleep until 1937, then aroused him for a ride in a present day contraption he would jump right out of the car; so frightened would he be by the speed we travel."

"Man is slow to accept speed," Dr. Sutton continued. "In a certain county in Indiana when railroads were first being built a petition was signed to protest putting rails through that county, and written into the document was: 'If God had intended man to go that fast he would have given him better legs.'"

Dr. Williamson, former crime commissioner for Chicago, who had the trivial task of cleaning up 18th Amendment violators, prostitution, organized gambling and, as a side dish, weeding out all of the city's dishonest employees, addressed his audience on the subject of the 5 C's, which he named as Al Capone, Crime, Courts, Conscience and Country. One time he sent a copy of this speech to the printers and it was returned for his proofreading. The printer had twisted the word "conscience" so that it appeared as "convenience." This, in Dr. Williamson's opinion, sums up the crime situation today in a world of twisted meanings.

In his farewell address to the teachers in the afternoon Dr. Williamson told the story of his farewell of a few years ago. He had been pastor of a church near here and as part of his duty went around saying goodbye to all the church members. One elderly lady had quite a devotion for the doctor and when he came to her house the scene was very touching. "I don't know where you are going," she said, "or how long they will keep you, but I do hope you will come back and bury me."

"With pleasure," the doctor said.

At a forum addressed by Dr. Williamson a number of years ago he presented an indictment against all unfair lawyers and criminal law practices. In the heat of the battle one man, a hefty individual, stalked out of the meeting. After the meeting another man came to Dr. Williamson to congratulate him on his speech and gave information about the man who had left the room in a huff. "You certainly hit that crook in the teeth," he declared. "How do you know?" the doctor asked. "Well, I ought to know," the man said. "He's been a partner of mine for the past 20 years."

Dr. Sutton said that in a rural elementary school near Atlanta all the children were given a kodak and a roll of six films with the instructions that they might "snap" anything they liked. In nearly every case the favorite subject was the mother hog feeding her young.

Dr. Sutton declared that the best summary of the educational system of today was presented by a young lad he picked up one morning on Memorial Drive in Atlanta. "I ain't smart with my head," the boy confessed, "but I am smart with my hands." Then the young fellow told of how he and his father bought up old junk automobiles for $34, went to work fixing them and sold them for about $130. Dr. Sutton took the boy with his story to city hall and urged official to buy up all the junk in town and thus plans were started to give work for those on relief . . . those who were not smart with their heads, but who were smart with their hands.

And then comments and opinions. Dr. Williamson: "We need a new definition of crime. A criminal is an individual who plans within himself how to make a material gain when he knows that it is wrong—and then goes ahead and does it. This makes criminals of tax evaders, grafters and many professional men."

Dr. Sutton: "I think 'Man, the Unknown,' is the greatest book outside of the Bible."

Dr. Williamson: "Crime is not a finger wave—it's a permanent wave. As long as we stay as we are the crime situation is not, and cannot and will not be solved."

Dr. Sutton: "Training of youth is better today. They may have less sense, but they do know how to use what they have."

Dr. Williamson: "Conscience has taken a peculiar somersault in both sexes since the war."

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 18.—(AP)—The state insurance department announced today that its six months drive to stamp out the "loan shark" business in East St. Louis has been successful.

World Voyage On Freighter Told By Patty Oliver

Miss Patty Oliver of International House, Chicago, delivered an interesting travelogue illustrated by motion pictures to the Foreign Travel club which met Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. H. U. Bardwell, 612 East Second street.

Miss Oliver told the club about her trip around the world on a freighter during which time she was gone over three months, and visited China, Japan, Malay Peninsula, Java, and the Philippines. After leaving the Malay Peninsula Miss Oliver was at sea forty-four days without making port until the freighter, the "Raby Castle" docked in New York after crossing the Indian Ocean, rounding the Cape of Good Hope and sailing up the Atlantic ocean.

Traveling on a freighter which can accommodate only ten or twelve passengers, Miss Oliver told the club a trip around the world can be made so inexpensive that almost anyone can accomplish it. Fares not including any purchases the traveler may make in foreign ports, or accommodations he may demand on shore costs him less than $500 for the entire round-the-world voyage. In addition, she said, one has the freedom of the entire vessel and mingles on friendly terms with the crew.

"On a freighter a trip around the world is just what one makes it," said Miss Oliver. "If one is bored with the sea, and can hardly wait until land appears on the horizon, one's chief pleasure is merely scratching off the days on the calendar until port is reached, and on a freighter one may be on the ocean six weeks."

"But if one really intends to enjoy oneself, he can find infinite pleasure in the odd jobs he can do to help the crew in their daily tasks. I painted ventilators for two weeks, and assisted the Chinese crew in calling signals and steering during a typhoon at sea. And then too one can enjoy the sea life one sees occasionally near the boat."

Miss Oliver illustrated this in her films which showed schools of fish nearby, and also the lurching vessel during the typhoon.

Before the lecture began a nominating committee composed of Miss Franks, Miss Anna Geisenheimer, and Mrs. Harry Edwards was appointed and on the proposal of Miss Esther Barton, the club voted unanimously to pay the traveling expenses of its speakers from out of town by dues set at $1 yearly.

One of the high lights of the convention was the address of Mrs. Nellie Burger, recording secretary of the National W. C. T. U. on the National Temperance Education fund. Her inspiration so radiated that $1100 were raised in cash and pledges in a few minutes for temperance education, although this was not on the program. ### BRETHREN REVIVAL

The revival meeting which started at the Brethren church yesterday morning started off with excellent crowds and an unusually fine spirit. Every one seemed enthused and willing to help in any way they could. The prospects seem very much in favor of one of the best revivals ever held in the local church. Every one is cordially invited to attend and enjoy the services.

The evangelist, Paul Thompson, is a son of the pastor of the church. He is a forceful and energetic speaker. His sermons are purely spiritual and optimistic. He is a revivalist who enjoys fighting against sin. Last night's sermon "Satan at Bat," was one which portrayed the little preacher's fighting spirit. His sermon for tonight will be "Going to a Wedding." Other sermon themes for the week are, "Pa, Ma, and the Baby," "What Salvation Is," "The Wages of Sin," and "Father, Forgive Them." All of these themes will be entertaining and religious, inspiring each one to a higher plane of living.

At the young people's service last evening preceding the worship period, Rev. C. A. Bryan emphasized the need for loyal cooperation among the young people during the revival. They all pledged themselves to help and serve in every way they could in bringing lost souls to the kingdom of God. The pep meeting already showed excellent results last evening in the revival.

The young people will have an important part in the campaign, but the older members have also pledged themselves to greater service during these two weeks. The meetings are off to a good start—let's "go places."

Attendance yesterday at Bible school was 282. The organized classes reported as follows: Young People, 39; Upstreamers, 33; True Blue, 25; Men, 25; Progressive, 19; C. I. C., 19; Mars, 12.

The primary department conferred honors upon two of its members who had attended the morning worship most frequently the last school-year. Carroll Kling won first place, having attended 40 Sundays. She received a nice Bible. Jayne Bristow was second, having attended 36 services.

Miss Leone Ott contributed a sacred solo at the morning service entitled, "My Creed," by Garrett.

HINTS for the Housewife

When melting chocolate place the chocolate on a piece of waxed paper. Then place paper and all, in the top of a double boiler over hot water. Allow chocolate to melt. This will save washing of a dish.

Waffle irons may be cleaned in a jiffy with a small stiff brush.

Save old powder puffs and wash them a they may be used as scouring pads, for cleaning silver, etc.,

Frost cakes that are to be carried to picnics, church suppers, etc., in the pan in which they are baked. It will make them a great deal easier to carry and eliminate waste through damage.

When only a few drops of lemon juice are needed, puncture the skin of the lemon with a fork and gently squeeze out the amount of juice required. This will keep the lemon fresh—thus eliminating the waste which usually occurs when a lemon is cut and only a little juice is used.

If the measuring cup or tablespoon is spread with a thin layer of lard before it is used for the measuring of molasses or syrups every drop will pour out.

Use a large pancake turner to remove pie or cake pans from the oven, it will save many burns.

If soft pie crust is rolled on a rolling pin, lifted and then unrolled over pie pan, it will not break.

For a quick and luscious filling and frosting for Devil's Food Cake, try placing halved marshmallows between two warm layers of cake, then place a bar of sweet chocolate on top.

A good way to keep the juice in fruit which has been cut (grapefruit, oranges, lemons, fresh pineapples) is to cover the exposed part with a piece of oiled or waxed paper and lay fruit cut side down onto a dish.

WATCHFUL OVER PALESTINE TORN BY ARAB RIOTS

Curfew Maintained In Jerusalem And Lydda Cities

Jerusalem, Oct. 18.—(AP)—British authorities, although hopeful of restoring quiet shortly to strife-torn Palestine, maintained close watch today and continued a curfew here and at Lydda. Sporadic attacks on Jews and Britons marked the week-end but stern British measures prevented any recurrence of widespread violence. An Armenian street photographer, apparently mistaken for an Arab because he wore the red fez-like tarboosh, was shot and critically wounded on a main street of Jerusalem. Shortly afterwards, shots were fired at a party of Arab laborers passing through the suburbs on their way to work. One was injured. An Arab was shot dead here and a Jewish tailor was stabbed and seriously injured in the Kerem el Sahel quarter. Laborers returning by automobile from the American quarry outside Jerusalem were attacked but there were no casualties.

Boy Was Killed
The outbreaks yesterday followed isolated attacks on Jewish settlements Saturday night, including fires at Lydda which resulted in the curfew there and orders to collect a $25,000 fine levied during the 1936 riots but not paid. A seven-year-old boy was killed at the Yemenei Jewish colony near Behovoth. Defenders of the colony replied with a machine gun when attackers fired 40 shots into the settlement.

A new solution to the conflict between the Holy Land's Arabs and Jews was suggested in a plan to convert Palestine, now ruled by Great Britain under a League of Nations mandate, into a British crown colony.

In Daring Satire of the President

"President Franklin Delano Roosevelt" was balancing another budget—in a Boston theater and with actress Joy Hodges as his helper—when this picture was made. But it wasn't the real budget or the real President Roosevelt. It was George M. Cohan in the new play, "I'd Rather Be Right," a satire on the administration, so stinging it would have been tabooed in almost any other country. Cohan portrays a singing and dancing chief executive, and throughout the cast pseudonyms are abandoned for real names.

UNDERWOOD IN SCORING LEAD OF CONFERENCE

New Set Of Leaders All Over Nation Last Weekend

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A new set of leaders was at the head of the nation's individual football scoring parade today, but the eastern pace-setters still showed the way to all other sections.

Bill Tranavitch of Rutgers and Sid White of Brooklyn college went on a couple of scoring sprees Saturday with 20 and 37 points, respectively, and wound up in a tie at 50 points each to take command not only of the eastern race, but of the entire country as well.

Their nearest rival was ambling Ambrose Schindler, Southern California's touchdown production head, with a total of 42 points, as a result of four six-pointers he scored Saturday which gave him the Pacific coast leadership.

Bob Swisher of Northwestern remained among the leaders for Big Ten laurels, but three others, Corby Davis of Indiana, Jim Martin of Wisconsin and Rudy Gmitro of Minnesota, moved into a tie with him.

Paul Shu of Virginia Military in the Southern conference, Dutch Konemann of Georgia Tech in the Southeastern conference, Clarence Douglass of Kansas in the Big Six and Gernand of Baylor in the Southwest were all new leaders in divisions. Cromer of Greeley State remained in front in the Rocky Mountain conference, while Bob Underwood of Drake broke a tie and took sole possession of the Missouri Valley leadership.

Pioneer Trail

Lincoln Highway Is Just
Paved Old-Time
Oxen Path

Terming the Lincoln Highway "merely a hard surface on a pioneer trail", and illustrating the story with a striking pictorial layout showing the most dangerous spots on the "trail" and data on a map showing the accident toll along the transcontinental route between Geneva and Fulton, Hal Foust of the Chicago Tribune had the following story in this morning's issue of that paper:

BY HAL FOUST

The Tribune roadster, in a recent drive of 105 miles over Roosevelt road from Geneva to Fulton, visited the scenes of 91 automobile accidents since Jan. 1, each involving one or more deaths or personal injuries. Evidence was found of physical hazards which could be alleviated.

The national safety council and other such agencies are directing their attention to rural accidents, because it is in the country that the motor fatality rate is showing its most rapid increase. In the last 12 years, deaths on the open road and in villages of less than 10,000 population increased 157 per cent while deaths in cities over 10,000 increased 27 per cent.

Faults Found in Road

The safety organizations are inclined to concentrate their efforts on correcting faulty driving. However, on Roosevelt road, which is better known farther west as the Lincoln highway, The Tribune roadster found faults in the road which might be easier to correct than man's proneness to mistakes.

Two or three miles west of Geneva a double row of elms on the right-of-way bore scars of autos on their heavy trunks. The narrow dirt shoulders and deep ditches bordering the 18-foot slab obviously had helped cause the accidents. Furthermore, although more of these large growing varieties are being planted throughout the state, a motorist might prefer shrubbery to absorb the impact rather than thick trees to jolt a car that has left the pavement.

Traffic Obscured at Corner

Ten miles west of Geneva there is an intersection of Roosevelt road with the new routing of U. S. 30, a scene of five bloody crashes since Jan. 1. A four-foot embankment which could easily be leveled shields the view of northbound from west bound traffic.

School houses are located along the highway, a location no safer for children than one abutting an unfenced railroad right of way. One of them, the Ward school, five miles east of DeKalb, is on a hill that limits the visibility of children walking the pavement to and from their homes.

In DeKalb, population 8,545, and 59 miles from the loop, the highway uses the main business street with curbs filled on both sides by hazardous angle parking. A local politician said that selfish retail merchants insisted upon this dangerous arrangement. A half block from the business center is a free parking lot, and it is not patronized.

12 Miles of Winding Road

Between Dixon and Sterling alone there have been three fatal accidents since Jan. 1, 16 involving personal injuries and 41 involving property damage. A narrow road with a heavy traffic winds in hills for the 12 miles. It's not a highway; it's a hard surface on a pioneer trail. The state has not erected signs to advise drivers where it is dangerous to pass overtaken cars.

There are narrow bridges and narrow culverts on the old Lincoln highway across Illinois. Heavy concrete walls at the edges of the pavement are vicious. One of this type over the Elkhorn creek is on a

Safe Driving

"Do Nots" Told at Chicago School for Drivers

Chicago, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Do you alight from the left side of your parked automobile?

While driving, do you look at the person next to you as you talk? Do you remove your hand from the gear lever while shifting? Do you use the rear-view mirror when backing up?

The Chicago Motor club safety department says you are a careless driver if you do. Those and other faults were pointed out today at the opening of a six-day safety school attended by about 50 high school instructors from several Midwest states.

Those attending are now teaching, or plan to teach, safe automobile driving to students in their institutions.

The safety school is sponsored by the Motor club, the Northwestern university school of education and traffic institute, and is held in suburban Evanston.

There is no modern highway across northern Illinois offering maximum protection to motorists against their human weaknesses.

Automobiles equipped with dual controls will be used for the road training.

"People must realize the social responsibilities imposed in the use of automobiles," Dean Ernest O. Melby of the Northwestern school of education said. "The logical time for such instruction is just before the boy or girl legally becomes eligible to drive—before he has had a chance to cultivate unsafe driving habits. The logical place for such training is the high school."

Among high schools in Illinois where safe driving is taught are Waukegan, Evanston, Normal, Oak Park, Hinsdale and Lane Tech of Chicago.

DIETERICH NOT NOT ANNOUNCING 2nd TERM RACE

Political Situation Fanned to Premature Fever

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Senator William H. Dieterich still withheld today a definite announcement about a second term race in 1938.

Six months before the primary, with the Democratic political situation fanned to premature heat by Governor Harner's outspoken opposition to the junior senator, followers of the major party's factions prepared for another bitter campaign.

Dieterich replied it was "premature" for the governor to say Illinois Democrats want another senator, adding:

"If I should choose to become a candidate at the primaries, I am willing to be judged by my record of loyalty both to my party and to my friends."

The normal time for announcements of candidacies for the April 12 primary would be some time around the first of the year. With Dieterich withholding his formal entry, Democrats assumed the Harner administration would have a man in the race but did not know who it would be.

Seeking Approval
A half dozen or so have been seeking the governor's approval, while some talk has been heard that former speaker John P. Devine of Dixon was being advanced in case a compromise had been possible.

At Chicago, leaders of the Kelly-Nash Democrat organization, who have backed Dieterich in the past, kept silent about their attitude toward the senatorship.

The next rally of the Horner forces is to be held at the state fairgrounds here Thursday under the auspices of the Young Democrats and the Democratic veterans, with the governor and Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, as speakers.

Democrats who have been on unfriendly terms with the governor since the 1936 primary split were expected to stay away from Thursday's barbecue.

SIXTEEN LINKS STARS SURVIVE OKLAHOMA MEET

Oklahoma City, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Sixteen of the nation's classiest professional players marched out two by two in the last 18-hole round of Oklahoma City's first annual four-ball tournament today to cut $5,000 in prize money.

At the head of the parade, but only a short step, were Horton Smith and Harry Cooper, sharp-shooting pair from Chicago. Close on their heels came Johnny Revolta of Chicago and Ray Mangrum of Dayton, O.

Revolta and Mangrum, the latter blazing around the water-logged course in 66, five under par, passed Ky Laffoon and Dick Metz, another Chicago team, by beating them, 3-up, in yesterday's sixth round.

Smith and Cooper watched their lead shrink to a single point when they last by a two-hole margin to Lawson Little of Chicago and Paul Runyan of New York.

Smith and Cooper went into the final round with nine points on the plus side of the score board. Little and Runyan stood third with five points on the plus side, a point ahead of Laffoon and Metz.

Only these four teams are conceded a chance to finish in first place and grab the $1,200 first prize.

Zell Eaton and Francis Scheider, Oklahoma City, whipped Ralph Guldahl, national open champion from Chicago, and Billy Burke, White Sulphur Springs, Y. Va., up.

Tommy Armour of Chicago and Jimmy Thompson, Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, lost three points to Ed Dudley of Philadelphia and Jimmy Hines of New York.

Social Security Board Opens New Field Offices

Chicago, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Regional Director H. L. McCarthy announced today the social security board would open new Illinois field offices this week in Rockford and Harrisburg.

Byron E. Goetz will be acting manager of the Harrisburg office, scheduled to open October 20 and to serve the counties of Alexander, Franklin, Gallatin, Hamilton, Hardin, Jackson, Johnson, Massac, Pope, Pulaski, Saline, Union, White and Williamson.

With Walter R. Bormap as manager, the Rockford office will open October 21 and serve Boone, Carroll, Joe Davies, Lee, Ogle, Winnebago, Whiteside and Stephenson counties. The offices will deal primarily with old age benefits under the security act, McCarthy said.

Morrison, idle in Rock River Valley competition last weekend, maintained its undisputed hold on first place in the conference... Morrison crossed the Mississippi last Friday to play Lyons, Ia., in a non-loop encounter.

Oregon, Rock Falls and Amboy were also idle in conference competition. Oregon played Byron last Thursday winning 14 to 0 in a non-conference encounter. Rock Falls and Amboy had an open date. Polo upset the dope by noing out Mt. Morris' Mounders, 7 to 6.

Morrison returns to the wars this week Friday night against one of its most formidable obstacles to its first Rock River Valley loop championship, on Morrison's field, Oregon. The Ogie county team is determined to erase the defeat administered by Mt. Morris and regain a share of first place. Coach Arthur Driver has devised a strong special defense to cope with Morrison's razzle-dazzle attack. Amboy and Rock Falls will engage in a critical encounter that will put one or the other definitely out of the current race. Rock Falls will be clutching at a last straw in the hope of getting better hold on its slipping 1936 crown. Amboy, by virtue of its 32 to 0 victory over Polo rates the favorite in this tilt, as Rock Falls only downed Polo 6 to 0 two weeks ago.

NEW WELLS PROVIDE

GUAM WITH WATER
Agana, Guam—(AP)—B. V. McCandlish, governor of Guam, has solved a water supply problem that has baffled farmers of northern Guam since the days of Spanish occupation.

For generations they have caught the scanty rainfall behind dams and endeavored to make this water suffice for their crops as there are no streams in this section. In dry periods they laboriously hauled in water on ox carts.

Believing there might be artesian water available, Governor McCandlish ordered well drilling machinery from the United States. The first drilling struck a good supply at 291 feet.

D. H. S. Reserve Strength
Too Much For Fighting
Geneseo Football Team

Bad Pass, Fumble In Fourth Quarter
Leads To Rout

Too much Dixon high school reserve strength plus a bad pass and a fumble in the fourth quarter which gave Dixon two more touchdowns was responsible for the 21 to 6 route of Geneseo at Reynolds field Saturday in a non-conference game for the locals. In an opening game two teams of Dixon reserves battled to a scoreless tie.

Coach C. B. Lindell, using Notre Dame shock troop tactics, substituted first the heavyweight then the lightweight eleven, the former seeing action three times during the contest and the latter twice. Despite this extreme pressure, Geneseo held Dixon to a 7-0 lead gained in the first quarter until in the fourth quarter the invaders finally cracked and made two bad errors which cost them another pair of touchdowns in less than two minutes.

Outgins Invaders
Dixon outgained Geneseo twelve first downs to four and completed five out of seven passes for an effective aerial game as well. Geneseo passed desperately but completed only four out of fourteen tries despite the fact they had in Feldman, Gould and Pobanz the best passing and receiving combination opposed to Dixon this fall.

Dixon started a drive for its first touchdown in the opening period from the 50 yard line after Geneseo had punted to midfield from its own 30 when failing to make substantial gains. Ankeny cried out after two unsuccessful line tries. Daschbach had previously made one first down for Dixon. The locals continued their power plays to the goal line. Ankeny going over from the one foot line. The extra point was converted.

After Geneseo received again, a pass Feldman to Hanford gave Geneseo a first down but on the next play Feldman fumbled and Dixon recovered. The locals moved up to the Geneseo 25 yard stripe but Ankeny then fumbled and Mock recovered for the invaders. Renner then circled Dixon's left end, and tried a lateral to Feldman which was bungled as the quarter ended. Geneseo recovered the ball.

Starts Whole New Team
Coach C. B. Lindell started a while new team at the opening of the second period but Geneseo battled through the entire period holding this outfit scoreless. Aside from a spectacular interception of a pass by Callahan who raced 40 yards before being downed, the quarter was mostly a punting duel. Coach Lindell sent his heavyweights back into the fray just before the quarter ended but before they could become dangerous the half time gun sounded.

Geneseo stopped three Dixon thrusts in the third quarter. The Gray and Gold recovered a Dixon fumble on the Geneseo 28-yard line and punted to Dixon's forty. Ankeny ripped 25 yards around end, and in two devastating power plays counted two first downs in bringing the ball up to the Geneseo 18 yard line. At this juncture Geneseo's stout line held for three downs and a pass on the fourth down was intercepted by Mock on Geneseo's ten yard line from which the invaders punted out to their own 36. The pressure kept increasing on the invaders however as Jensen ripped off tackle to start the third Dixon push. A shovel pass through the line was good for five yards as the period ended.

Callahan Fumbles
The fatal fourth period opened when Callahan fumbled and Geneseo recovered on its own ten yard line. At this juncture Center Schraeder of Geneseo made his bad pass to Mock and Nicklaus breaking through the line fell on the pigskin behind Geneseo's goal for Dixon's fumbled on it own 30 yard marker and a long pass by Ankeny to Page was good to Geneseo's five yard stripe from where Ellis darted over the goal. He also made the point after touchdown.

Dixon's lightweighters again entered the game to stem a flood of Geneseo passes nearly all of which were ineffective. The invaders kept the lightweighters mostly on the defensive and recovered the ball on Geneseo's 45 yard line. Feldman then took the ball attempted a pass, couldn't find the receiver, so ran with it 55 yards for a touchdown giving Geneseo its only tally.

This proved a signal for the heavyweights to rush into the fray for the third time, but after Ellis had received a pass good for 25 yards the game ended.

FEWER TEAMS
UNDEFEATED
EVERY WEEK

Upsets in League And Conference Play
Reasons

New York, Oct. 18—(AP)—Inter-collegiate football approached the seasonal half-way mark today with the ranks of undefeated and untied teams drastically reduced and sectional championship races turned upside down by another series of form reversals that struck every section of the country.

Today only 17 major teams still could boast perfect records. They will be depleted materially after next Saturday's program. Here's how the undefeated list stands now:

East—Dartmouth, Syracuse, Holy Cross, Yale, George Washington, undefeated and untied; Pitt, Fordham, Navy, Harvard, Boston college, Temple and Villa Nova undefeated but tied.

Midwest—Wisconsin, Northwestern and Detroit unbeaten and untied; Nebraska tied.

South—Vanderbilt, Louisiana State and Alabama undefeated and untied; Tulane, Auburn, Duke and North Carolina tied.

Southwest—Baylor undefeated and untied; Texas A. & M. tied.

Far West—California and Santa Clara undefeated and untied.

Rocky Mountain—Colorado, Western State (Gunnison) and Montana undefeated and untied.

Week's Prospect
Prospects for this week seem about as follows:

East: Pitt, which outplayed Fordham by a wide margin but fumbled or otherwise kicked away its chances for victory in the third consecutive scoreless tie these teams have played, tackles Wisconsin's revived Badgers, whose fourth consecutive victim was Iowa, 13-6. Alabama, which struck a heavy blow toward a share in the Southeastern conference championship by upsetting Tennessee, 14-7, travels north to play George Washington in a clash of undefeated and untied teams.

Detroit, which removed Catholic from the unbeaten brigade last week, faces Boston college, held to a scoreless tie by Temple. Colgate, impressive in holding Tulane to a 7-6 score, tackles undefeated Duke, whose Blue Devils rushed over a touchdown in the last few minutes to whip Georgia Tech in a thriller at Atlanta, 20-19.

Keeping the intersectional ball rolling, Fordham plays Texas Christian, which surprised by holding powerful Texas A. & M. to a 7-7 draw.

Syracuse, whose great halfback, Marty Glickman, paced the Orange to last week's most startling upset, a 14-6 conquest of undefeated Cornell, plays Maryland, 3-0 victor over Virginia. Army, soundly whipped by the crack Yale array led by Clint Frank, cases off against Washington university of St. Louis.

Yale Plays Cornell
The domestic slate is headed by a clash at New Haven between Yale and Cornell, which sadly needed the services of injured George Peck against Syracuse. Carnegie Tech, held to a net gain of seven yards by rushing, but 9-7 victor over Notre Dame just the same on Coleman Kopcsak's field goal, plays Temple in a Friday night game.

Columbia, after crushing Penn, 26-6, with Sid Luckman doing yeoman service, finds Brown, crushed 41-0 by Dartmouth, next on the slate. Dartmouth plays Harvard, which held Navy to a scoreless tie. Holy Cross, which played a strong defensive game to top Georgia, 7-6, should ease past Western Maryland. Villanova, whose John Wysocki scored all three touchdowns in a 20-0 rout of Manhattan, should hurdle Bucknell.

Princeton, which had too much power for Chicago, 16-7, plays Rutgers, undefeated and untied in four minor engagements. Penn plays Georgetown, unexpectedly upset by Lafayette, 6-0. Lafayette, undefeated and untied, may come a cropper against New York university.

South
Louisiana State's Tigers, who chalked up their second straight Southeastern conference victory against Mississippi, 13-0, play Vanderbilt, 6-0 conqueror of Southern Methodist and victor over Kentucky in their only conference test. Auburn, which ran up a 33-7 count on Mississippi State, meets tricky Georgia Tech in another stand-out conference game. Mississippi State and Florida, Tennessee and Sewanee are other conference pairings.

Kentucky entertains Manhattan while Tulane invades Chapel Hill for a joust with unbeaten North Carolina, 28-0 victor over Wake Forest last week.

In the Southern conference, Virginia Military, the leader with three consecutive victories, plays Virginia, 14-0.

Illinois Wesleyan, St.
Viator Fight To
6-6 Tie

Chicago, Oct. 18—(AP)—The 21 schools scrambling for 1937 Illinois Intercollegiate conference football honors had an undisputed leader today in the Siwash of Knox.

Knox defeated Millikin 13-0 last week for its second conference win in a row and found itself alone atop the standings when St. Viator and Illinois Wesleyan, 1936 co-champion, battled to a 6-6 tie. The Si-wash held the added distinction of being the only eleven unbeaten and untied in title or non-conference play.

Strung out behind in the standings were four schools with one win apiece and four more unbeaten but tied. Five of this group engage in the six conference games scheduled this week, but only Augustana and Illinois college stand a chance to share first place honors with Knox, which steps outside conference bounds this week. And to do this, Illinois college must conquer powerful Wesleyan, and Augustana a similarly formidable North Central eleven.

Combines Passing, Running
Knox combined passing and running plays to overcome Millikin last week as Wesleyan floundered against a fighting St. Viator team.

Illinois college opened its conference season with a 7-6 win over Carthage. North Central fell from the unbeaten ranks when Elmhurst marched 62 yards in the second period to win, 6-0.

McKendree received its first league setback when the Southern Teachers scored twice in the last six minutes and triumphed, 19-10.

The Northern Teachers registered 15 first downs to three for Wheaton in winning, 7-0, while the Eastern Teachers turned to passes in the last half to rout Eureka, 49-0. Western Teachers gave an impressive display of defensive strength in holding State Normal five times within its own 10-yard line to emerge with a scoreless tie.

Outside the conference, Bradley fell before Washington University of St. Louis 13-7.

Bradley opposed Omaha this week.

Lake Forest and Carroll college of Waukegan, Wis., played to a scoreless tie.

Monmouth overwhelmed Lawrence of Appleton, Wis., 20-0, but Augustana and Shurtleff lost, the former to St. Ambrose, 13-0, and Shurtleff to Wentworth of Lexington, Mo., 6-3.

WILDCATS' PATH
GETS TOUGHER

Must Play the Buckeyes,
Badgers, Illini and Gophers Yet

Chicago, Oct. 18—(AP)—Northwestern goes "on the spot" Saturday.

The Wildcats, finding it as hard to cling to their Big Ten football title as to win it, have had two rough afternoons against Michigan and Purdue in a thus-far successful defense of their laurels. But next Saturday, at Columbus, Northwestern dares the formidable guns of Ohio State, and after that from the Wildcats have nothing to worry about except getting by Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota, in order.

Ohio State, which will have had two weeks rest after losing a one-point thriller to Southern California, will be out to avenge another one-point defeat—the 14 to 13 victory taken by Northwestern last year to put the only conference loss on the Bucks' 1936 record.

The Wildcats, defeating Purdue, 14 to 7, on a fumble-break in the closing minutes, came out of the bruising battle in good physical condition.

Purdue Has Open Date
Purdue has an open date preparatory to taking on Iowa, which lost its first conference start, 13 to 6, to Wisconsin's surprising Badgers.

Wisconsin had to score a fourth period touchdown to whip the Hawkeyes. Iowa entertains Michigan next Saturday, as Wisconsin travels to Pittsburgh for battle with the Panthers.

Michigan, expected to give Minnesota a test, scored a first period touchdown, apparently, was just the grease the Gophers have needed for several weeks. They scored 13 points in each of the final three periods to win, 39 to 6.

Indiana, putting on a fourth period drive, whipped Illinois, 13 to 6, and next Saturday goes against Cincinnati university at Cincinnati.

Illinois probably will appreciate its week of rest, and will be ready for an old rival, Michigan, on October 30.

Chicago, after outplaying Princeton for the first half, fell before

LIONS AND BEARS
MEET IN NATURAL
PRO GRID BATTLE

Giants, Bears Leading Respective Divisions
Of League

Chicago, Oct. 18—(AP)—One of football's greatest "naturals" goes on at Wrigley field next Sunday when the Detroit Lions tear into the Chicago Bears—with the winner likely to roll on to the National pro league championship.

Detroit, led by the brilliant Dutch Clark, and Chicago, numbering in its lineup such stars as Beetle Feathers, Bronko Nagurski and Jack Manders, each have won four games. The Lions, however, have lost one game, and victory next Sunday for the Bears would establish this club as an overwhelming favorite to win the western sectional crown.

The Bears won their fourth straight game yesterday at the expense of their home town rivals, the Cardinals, taking a 16 to 7 decision before 29,000 cash customers.

Detroit, flashing its best attack of the season, rolled over Brooklyn, 30 to 0.

The Green Bay Packers slaughtered the Cleveland Rams, 35 to 10, with Don Hutson, fleet Packer end, scoring three touchdowns on passes by Arnie Herber and Bob Monnett. Cliff Battles, with three long runs for touchdowns, led the Washington Redskins to a 34 to 20 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates before 13,000 at Washington.

New York's Giants, leaders of the eastern section with three victories and one defeat, tripped Philadelphia's hapless Eagles, 21 to 0.

GOP MAY TACKLE "SLATE MAKING" BEFORE PRIMARY

G. O. P. State Committee To Meet At Springfield Next Friday

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 18—(AP)—Problems of "slate making" may be tackled by the Republican minority as well as the Democratic organizations in the campaign preceding the Illinois primary April 12.

Slate endorsements have become something of a Democratic tradition. They haven't been attempted by the Republicans, however, in the "wide open" primaries during their recent years of political reverses.

Agitation for an endorsed slate of candidates, or else for a pre-primary convention to select nominees in advance, is to be one of the major issues when the G. O. P. state committee meets here next Friday.

Theory and Practice

In theory, a slate lessens intra-party battling over nominations. In practice, the state central committee looks over the field of candidates and gives its endorsement to a definite ticket, which then goes into the direct primary with the support of the party's titular leadership.

But slates don't always insure political peace and they don't always win. The best example of that was given by Governor Horner in 1936, when he won renomination even though he was left off the slate of the powerful Kelly-Nash Chicago organization.

Republican talk of a slate isn't exactly new. Hal M. Stone of Bloomington suggested it several months ago. Before that, agitation was started for a pre-primary advisory convention, to which Republicans would send county delegations to decide who should be nominated. Chief advocate of the convention idea has been Probate Judge Benjamin S. Deboise of Springfield, a state committeeman.

State chairman John F. Tyrrell of Chicago, in calling the Republican meeting for next week, approved plans for a slate, for which he said his party had precedent.

Republican Question
A question to be faced by the Republicans, however, is whether other party leaders, divided in the past, would insist on a "wide open" primary in which several men would seek each nomination.

Some Republican committeemen in the past have contended that some Chicago leaders have exercised an undue amount of control over party finances and policies. Tyrrell indicated that question might be revived by an assertion the state committee should act as the party's "trustees."

For the Democrats, slate making might be interesting also. If both the Horner and the Chicago factions would agree on a ticket, headed by a candidate for senator, it would mean the healing of old campaign wounds. If they don't agree, any action by the Democratic committee would be a signal for further fighting, probably leading toward entry of rival slates.

Mrs. Nancy Honeyman, Oregon congresswoman, has been named as a member of the Women's Participation Committee of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

On Heating

Illinois University Engineers Tell of Their Studies

By ART WILDHAGEN

Urbana-Champaign, Ill., Oct. 18—At least seven months of each year residents of Illinois and of all other northern states are dependent upon artificial heating for their comfort, especially in their homes. From the days of the cave man's brushwood fires to just about 20 years ago there had been little scientific study of home heating problems.

Yet present heating plants are far from the cave man's blazes. The most recent figures available show more than six million warm air heating systems, a million each of steam and of hot water plants, and more than seven million stoves in the urban residential dwellings of America. In the State of Illinois more than 933,000 homes have warm air, more than 31,000 steam heat, and more than 67,000 hot water heat, while 395,000 have stoves. Even the stoves are far removed from the pre-historic outdoor fires. Central heating plants are more complicated. Fuel has changed from wood to coal, and now oil, gas, and even electricity are growing in favor. While most of these changes were being made, little thought was given to the underlying facts of fuel and home heating problems.

But in the last 20 years science has cast its searching eye upon the problems of home heating. As a result home owners today receive greater efficiency from their heating plants, and greater heat for the money they spend for fuel.

Much of the increase in knowledge of the facts underlying home heating has come from research done at the University of Illinois during the past two decades.

Although there had been some previous work on the subject of home fuels, real activity in the direction of studying and seeking to prove home heating got under way just about 20 years ago, with one of the principal workers a young College of Engineering faculty member named Arthur Cutts Willard. Today he is one of the world's outstanding experts in subjects of heating and ventilation. Also, he has risen from one post to another until now he is president of the University of Illinois.

Research in gravity warm air furnaces and fuels has been carried on continuously by the university in co-operation with the National Warm Air Heating and Air Conditioning association, whose funds have provided laboratory equipment and a research residence specially designed for these studies.

Another investigation for the increase of home comfort started a little more than 10 years ago with the Boiler and Radiator Institute and the Illinois Master Plumbers' association co-operating with the university. It focused attention on the problems of home heating with hot water and steam. This is being carried on today with the co-operation of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers.

Research work of this type is done by the Engineering Experiment station, founded at the University of Illinois in 1903, and the first of its kind in the nation. Dean M. L. Enger of the College of Engineering is director of the station. Results of all studies are public property and are published for the benefit of everyone.

In addition to President Willard, men who have done and are carrying on the University of Illinois' outstanding work in studying home heating and air conditioning problems are Prof. A. P. Kratz, Prof. M. K. Wahnstock, Prof. P. E. Mohn, Prof. W. H. Severns, Prof. Selch Kozko, J. R. Fellows, and E. L. Broderick.

Many of the things which these men have learned about fuels, furnaces, radiators, and various home heating problems are of direct interest to every householder, and game, be it chess or golf, who does not have the ability to inhibit, to put "under control," his own reactions, nervous, muscular and emotional. No one learns to play the game of life well who hasn't learned to inhibit.

Unfortunately, due to much loose discussion of psychology, "inhibition" has acquired a bad connotation. Many look upon it as a sort of "psychic boll." But that's erroneous. The function of inhibition and the ability to inhibit are the basis of effective performance, physical and mental.

Parents and educators need to appreciate this more than they commonly do.

SATISFACTORY SHAVING

By Iago Galdston, Md.

Dull blades, incompletely softened whiskers and bad shaving angles are the main causes of unsatisfactory shaving.

These discoveries, plus several others, are the result of a four-year investigation of shaving conducted at the Mellon Institute in Pittsburgh by Dr. Lester Hollander and Elbridge J. Casselman.

The "guinea pigs" were 31 scientists, both blond and brunette. Young and old shavers, tender beards and tough ones were on the list.

The researchers found that neither the normal rate of hair growth (11 to 12 millimeters a month) nor the hair thickness is affected by shaving or cutting.

In safety razors, dull blades are less likely to cut the skin than sharp ones.

Excessive stretching of the skin while shaving may cause a man to cut himself. Why? Because the skin, if stretched too far, protrudes at the site of the hair follicles and produces a goose-flesh effect.

Adequate preparation of the face is half the battle won, say Dr. Hollander and Mr. Casselman. They offer the following instructions on how to shave:

Wash the face with a mild soap and hot water. Carry on for 30 seconds or so, then rinse the face thoroughly with hot water. This operation should remove grit, sweat and sebum (a fatty secretion of the skin).

Next apply your favorite shaving soap. Rub it into the surface of the skin with the hand, using copious amounts of water. The washing and soaping together should take from two and a half to three minutes.

Then wet the razor with hot water and keep both it and the face wet during the entire shaving operation.

"It is good practice to shave the less difficult portions of the face first, in order that the more difficult portions shall have the benefit of a still longer contact with water," advise these shaving experts.

Japan's Air Raiders Strike at Busy Canton Port

Newest target of Japanese destructive bombing squadrons is Canton, peaceful, busy seaport, south China's gateway to the world. Flying more than 700 miles from the Shanghai sector, the Japanese air attack was planned to disable commerce on the waterfront, shown above, make the sea blockade more effective, and demoralize Chinese resistance by laying waste non-combatant areas. Endangered is the beautiful memorial to Sun Yat-sen, China's George Washington, shown in inset, its grandeur of architecture reflected in the design of the ordinarily prosaic street lamp.

was, in the famous Dred Scott case, the decision played an important role in precipitating the Civil War. Republicans denounced the Court at that time as bitterly as they denounced Roosevelt's criticism of the Court last year.

New Dealers assert that, since the Constitution gives the Supreme Court no authority over the qualifications of its members, the Chief Justice should have thrown out the two petitions challenging Black on the ground that the Court had no jurisdiction.

But although Hughes axed the petitions, he didn't do so for want of power. He dismissed them on the contention that their authors were not legally proper persons to challenge Black.

Thus the Chief Justice, in his adroit decision, laid down the dictum that given the right circumstance the Supreme Court can rule on the eligibility of its members. This is a precedent that may have far reaching consequences in the future.

Brain Twizzlers

By PROF. J. D. FLINT

Let us soar into the realm of logic with an ancient teacher of law.

This is one of the greatest of problems.

The teacher had a pupil who was to pay the fee for the course half down and the rest when he was able to plead and win his first case. After the course was finished the pupil was in no hurry to plead his first case so finally the teacher hailed him into court and said, "No matter what the verdict is I get my money because if I win you must pay me and if I lose you win your first case and must pay me." The pupil laughed and replied, "Not so, not so! If I win the case it means I need not pay by ruling of the court and if I lose I need not pay because I then lose my first case."

Can you straighten out this reasoning?
